Abstract:

The WCC student yearbook has been published annually under various titles at least since 1964, the known titles including Zodiac (1964-1965), Greenbriar (1966-1967), Teknik (1968), Insight (1969-1971 and 1973-1974), Getting Together (1972), and New Horizons (1985).

Volume as well as year designations are given on the title pages for volumes I-VII (1964-1970), but it seems only year designations are given for any subsequent yearbook issues. One issue has no year or volume designation, but internal evidence, a photo of a student in a commemorative t-shirt emblazoned 1979, leads to a probable publication date of no earlier than 1979. It is unclear in exactly what year publication of the WCC student yearbook began or in what year it ceased.

Contents of WCC student yearbooks consist chiefly of reproductions of black and white photographs of WCC students, staff and faculty engaged in various college and community activities, organizations, clubs, and events. By the late 1970s, but definitely by the issue for 1985, some color photographs are included, and some original, unattributed artwork is usually present in each volume. Also, of the archive holdings, only volumes for 1964 through 1971 include sections of studio portraits for the entire student body.

Historical Note:

The WCC student yearbook has been published annually under various titles at least since 1964, the known titles including Zodiac (1964-1965), Greenbriar (1966-1967), Teknik (1968), Insight (1969-1971 and 1973-1974), Getting Together (1972), and New Horizons (1985).

Volume as well as year designations are given for volumes I-VII (1964-1970) on the title page, but it seems only year designations are given for any subsequent yearbook issues. One issue has no year or volume designation, but internal evidence, a photo of a student in a commemorative t-shirt emblazoned 1979, leads to a probable publication date of no earlier than 1979.

Attributed WCC student yearbook editors and co-editors include Linda Eason and Fred Futrelle (1966), Grace Jones and Amber Henson (1967), Claudia Farmer (1968), Terry Pilkington (1969), Jim Quillin (1970), Irene Jane Linford and Brantley E. Watkins (1971), Jean Edgerton and Danny Nicely (1972), Gail Adams and Dean Sauls (1973), Gail Adams (1974) and Ray Lanier (1985).

The WCC Historical Archives holdings of the WCC student yearbooks include volumes published to commemorate the years 1964-1974, as well as 1979(?) and 1985. Neither internal evidence nor institutional record give an indication of the complete publishing history or run of the WCC student yearbook, though it certainly appears to have been out of publication for many years as of processing the collection in 2008.

Scope and Content Note:

Contents of WCC student yearbooks consist chiefly of reproductions of black and white photographs of WCC students, staff and faculty engaged in various college and community activities, organizations, clubs, and events. By the late 1970s, but definitely by the issue for 1985, some color photographs are included, and some original, unattributed artwork is usually present in each volume. Also, of the archive holdings, only volumes for 1964 through 1971 include sections of studio portraits for the entire student body.

WCC student yearbooks in the archives, generally measuring about 8 x 10 inches, are all professionally printed on glossy paper, and bound in cloth case bindings of various colors, with only the 1972 volume being paperbound. Most covers are embossed in some way, a few with the college's seal in gold (1970-1971 and 1974). The only named publishers are Taylor Publishing Co. (1964-1965) and Hunter Publishing Co. of Winston Salem, N.C. (1966, 1969 and 1974). The collection is organized into one series titled Yearbooks and occupies about one linear foot in the archives.
